FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

SupremeX Appoints Andrew Schipke as Vice President of Sales, U.S.

Montreal, QC – SupremeX Inc. — SupremeX, a leading North American manufacturer of envelopes, paper-based e-commerce mailers, and packaging solutions, announced today that Andrew Schipke has been named Vice President of Sales for the U.S. market. Schipke will oversee all U.S. commercial activities across the envelope and e-commerce packaging segments.

SupremeX has made a series of strategic U.S. envelope manufacturing acquisitions in recent years, including Classic Envelope, Bowers Envelope, Royal Envelope Corporation, Niagara Envelope, Forest Envelope, and most recently, in December 2025, Elite Envelope. Schipke will be responsible for leveraging this combined U.S. platform to drive volume, improve customer reach, and strengthen SupremeX's position as the third-largest envelope manufacturer in North America.

"Andrew is well known in the envelope and mailing industries for delivering results and building strong customer partnerships," said Stewart Emerson, CEO of SupremeX. "The U.S. market is a major pillar of our long-term growth strategy. Our continued growth in the U.S. requires experienced leadership, and Andrew's understanding of market dynamics—production, supply chain, postal, and customer behavior from a production standpoint—makes him the right fit."

Schipke is a veteran of the commercial printing and mailing sectors with more than four decades of experience in sales and marketing leadership. He is widely recognized as an envelope print and manufacturing thought leader, with a real commitment to the envelope and mailing market, including 20 years of experience at W+D.

"SupremeX has demonstrated the scale, operational strength, people, distribution, and paper mill alliances to uniquely compete in the U.S. market," said Joe Baglione, President of SupremeX. "We now have 14 manufacturing facilities, 2 distribution sites, 900 employees and over 100 envelope converting machines to address the U.S. market demand, and Andrew's extensive experience with print, envelope manufacturing, and mail inserting technology gives SupremeX additional insight needed to lead our sales team and support our U.S. mailing customers at a much deeper level."

"I'm excited to join SupremeX at a pivotal point as the envelope and mailing markets undergo significant change," said Andrew Schipke. "SupremeX has impressed me with its corporate commitment and strategy for paper-based communications. Envelopes, e-commerce mailers, packaging, and labels—all from one unified source. In a market where the impact of convergence continues and supply chain uncertainty prevails, SupremeX has put together a unique value proposition with a significant U.S. manufacturing and distribution footprint, financial stability, and critical paper mill source alliances to confidently supply the needs of the U.S. mailing, e-commerce and packaging markets."
